How To Use These Templates

- Replace all [brackets] with your client's name, goal, condition, and your practice details.
- Keep the tone warm, science-backed, and non-judgmental — the hallmark of great nutrition counselling.
- Always include your credentials in your sign-off — credibility matters in this regulated field.
- These work as emails, practice portal messages, and WhatsApp/text messages — shorten for text.
- Save your top performers as templates in your practice management software or Gmail.

Subject Re: Your Nutrition Inquiry — Next Steps From [Your Name]

BODY Hi [First Name], Thank you so much for reaching out — I'm really glad you did. Based on what you've shared, [brief personalized note — e.g., 'managing blood sugar through nutrition is absolutely something we can work on together' / 'your goal of improving your relationship with food while losing weight sustainably is exactly my area of focus']. I'd love to learn more about your situation and see if we're a good fit to work together. Here's what I suggest:

Subject One Thing That Makes The Biggest Difference For [Goal]...

BODY Hi [First Name], I wanted to follow up on my note and share something that's really relevant to what you mentioned: [Specific insight relevant to their stated goal — e.g., 'Most people trying to manage blood sugar focus on cutting carbs — but the research shows that meal timing and protein distribution often matter just as much. That's where we'd start.' / 'One of the biggest reasons weight loss attempts stall isn't willpower — it's inadequate protein and poor hunger hormone signalling. Easy to fix once we know what's happening.']. Happy to go deeper on this in a discovery call. Booking link is here if you're ready: [link].

Subject Quick Check-In — How's The Week Going, [First Name]?

BODY Hi [First Name], Just checking in mid-week — how are things going with the plan? A few things I'm curious about: - How have your energy levels been? - Any meals that felt really good — or any that were tough to stick to? - Anything you'd like to adjust or talk through at our next session? Even a quick reply helps me tailor our next session to where you actually are. [Your Name], [Credentials] Milestone Celebration

Subject Let's Talk About Where You Are Right Now — I Have Some Thoughts

BODY Hi [First Name], I've been thinking about your progress and I want to be proactive about something. Progress has levelled off a bit recently — and I want you to know that's completely expected and normal. It's not a sign that the plan isn't working. What it usually means: [brief clinical explanation — e.g., 'Your body has adapted to the calorie level and we need to reassess your targets' / 'Stress and sleep quality can significantly stall fat loss even when nutrition is perfect — and based on what you've shared, that might be a factor here']. I have a couple of adjustments I'd like to try.

Subject No Judgment — Just Want To Check In, [First Name]

BODY Hi [First Name], I noticed it's been a little quiet — I just wanted to reach out with absolutely no judgment. Going off track is part of the process for almost every client I've worked with. It doesn't mean you've failed — it means we need to look at what's making adherence hard right now and adjust. Can we talk before our next session? Even 10 minutes would help me understand what's happening so we can make the plan work better for your real life. I'm on your side — always. [Your Name], [Credentials]

BODY Hi [Name], I came across your work and wanted to reach out — I think we might be a great complement to each other's practices. I'm a [RD/nutritionist] specializing in [specialty] based in [City/online]. A lot of my clients are also working with personal trainers — and I imagine some of your clients would benefit from nutrition support alongside their training. I'd love to explore a mutual referral relationship. I refer clients who need structured training to trusted trainers, and vice versa — both of us end up with better client outcomes and a fuller client load. Happy to jump on a quick call if that sounds interesting.
