Subject Your Lab Results — Let's Talk Through Them, [First Name]

Hi [First Name], Thank you for sharing your lab results with me. I've reviewed them and wanted to give you some context before we talk. Please remember: I'm providing a nutritional perspective to complement your doctor's medical interpretation — not medical advice or diagnosis. From a nutritional standpoint, here's what I noticed: [plain-language observations — e.g., Your ferritin (iron stores) is on the lower side, which is consistent with the fatigue you've been experiencing.

Subject Let's Talk About What's Happening — [First Name]

Hi [First Name], I've been looking at your progress over the last [timeframe] and I want to address what I know you might be feeling: it's been slower recently. First — this is completely normal and expected. The body is not linear. What looks like a plateau is often your metabolism and hormones adjusting to your new lower weight, and it's actually a sign of real progress, not stagnation. Here's what I'd like to try: [1-2 specific adjustments — e.g., a brief calorie break of 1-2 weeks / adjusting your protein timing] I want to be clear: the work you've done is real. Progress is building.
