Section 1: Talk Development Template

Use this framework to develop any new talk from a clear brief. A well-developed talk is far easier to sell, easier to customize, and delivers better audience outcomes. ✓ TALK TITLE: [Working title — change this as the talk evolves] ✓ ✓ THE CORE PREMISE (one sentence): What is the single most important thing your audience will leave knowing? Write it in one sentence. If you cannot, your talk is not yet clear enough. ✓ ✓ THE AUDIENCE PROBLEM: What problem does your audience have that this talk addresses? Be specific — 'leaders who manage hybrid teams and struggle with accountability' is better than 'business leaders'.

✓ ✓ THE TRANSFORMATION: What changes for an audience member between the beginning and the end of this talk? Write the before and after. ✓ Before: [what they believe / feel / know when they sit down] ✓ After: [what they believe / feel / know when they stand up] ✓ ✓ THE 3 KEY INSIGHTS OR FRAMEWORKS: What are the 3 things you want every audience member to remember? (Not 5. Not 7. Three.) ✓ 1. ✓ 2. ✓ 3. ✓ ✓ THE STORY: Every great talk has one central story that anchors the message. What is yours? [Describe the story briefly — the situation, the conflict, the resolution, the lesson] ✓

✓ THE DATA: What research, statistic, or evidence supports your central premise? [List 2-3 key data points with sources]
 ✓ ✓ THE CALL TO ACTION: What do you want the audience to DO differently after your talk? Be specific — one concrete action is worth 10 vague ones. ✓ ✓ IDEAL AUDIENCE: [Who gets the most from this talk? Be specific.] ✓ IDEAL EVENT TYPE: [Conference keynote / corporate workshop / leadership day / industry association / other] ✓ TALK DURATION OPTIONS: [e.g., 20 min / 45 min / 60 min / half-day workshop] ✓ [The best talks are built around one clear idea expressed compellingly. The framework above forces that clarity.]

✓ Fee-Setting Principles:

✓ 1. Set a fee you can hold. If you quote it and immediately reduce it when pushed, it was never your real fee.

✓ 2. Your fee is not just for the 45 minutes on stage. It is for years of expertise, hours of preparation, customisation for their specific audience, and the intellectual property you are sharing. ✓ 3. Raise your fee after every 10 paid engagements. Each booking is evidence that the market values your work at that rate. Demand above that rate is evidence it will bear more. ✓ 4. Have a non-negotiables list: expenses (travel, accommodation) are always in addition to your fee. Never include expenses in your fee quote. ✓ 5. Pro-bono engagements: limit to 2-3 per year, always for strategic reasons — exposure to a key audience,
